Born at Shelton, in Staffordshire--Educated at Cambridge, but leaves without taking a Degree--Becomes a Nonjuror--Secretary to the Earl of Orrery and Tutor to his Son--Acquires the friendship of Southerne and Pope--Publishes his Poems--Assists Pope in the Odyssey--His Benevolence of Heart and Indolent Habits--Death and Burial at Easthampstead, Berks--Works and Character. The brevity with which I am to write the account of Elijah Fenton is not the effect of indifference or negligence. I have sought intelligence among his relations in his native country, but have not obtained it. He was born near Newcastle in Staffordshire, 1 of an ancient family, whose estate was very considerable; but he was the youngest of eleven children, and being therefore necessarily destined to some lucrative employment, was sent first to school and afterwards to Cambridge, 2 but, with many other wise and other virtuous men who at that time, of discord and debate consulted conscience, whether well or ill informed, more than interest, he doubted the legality of the government, and, refusing to qualify himself for public employment by the oaths required, left the university without a degree; but I never heard that the enthusiasm of opposition impelled him to separation from the church. By this perverseness of integrity he was driven out a com 1 He was born May 20, 168: !, at Shelton, near Stoke in Stafford, and was the youngest of eleven children of John Fenton, an attorney-at-law, and...
