A. 406 pp. Cloth, 2. 50, postage, 20 cents. New York: The Neale Publishing Company. 1906. Professor Holliday's book establishes beyond question his contention that the South has produced a literature so distinctive in its fundamental conception and growth as to deserve separate attention. This History of Southern Literature is the first effort to give the connected story of the development of the literature of the South from its earliest days to the present time--a worthy undertaking worthily performed. Beginning with A True Relation of Virginia, written in 1607 by Captain John Smith, Professor Holliday reviews the work of nearly 150 distinctively Southern writers, including, of course, many of minor importance, but including in the list, also, such conspicuous names as Poe, Timrod, Harris, Hayne, Ryan, Lanier, Hopkinson Smith, Murfree, and Page, together with others that are well known, though...
